BREXIT

The United Kingdom's withdrawal from the European Union is commonly known as "Brexit", a term deriving from "British exit". Following a referendum held in June 2016, in which 52% of votes were cast in favour of leaving the EU, Prime Minister Theresa May announced that the government intended to invoke Article 50 of the Treaty of European Union, the formal procedure for withdrawing, by the end of March 2017, which would put the UK on a course to leave the EU by the end of March 2019. The terms of withdrawal have not yet been negotiated; in the meantime, the UK remains a full member of the European Union.

The UK joined the European Economic Community (EEC), a predecessor of the EU, in 1973 and confirmed its membership in a 1975 referendum by 67% of the votes. In the 1970s and in the 1980s, withdrawal from the EEC was advocated mainly by some Labour Party and Trade Unions figures.

From the 1990s withdrawal was advocated mainly by some Conservative and from UK Independence Party.
